Mrs. Del Monte Jealous of Mrs. Marvin Procures a Revolver, Lies in Wait for Her and Succeeds in Hitting Her Twice.

Would-Be Slayer Flees and Police and Residents of Bath Beach Section Hunt for Her in Vain Until Late This Afternoon.

There is a woman hunt on in the Dyker Meadows near Bath Beach, Half the residents of that place are helping the police search for Mrs. Cesari Del Monte, who shot Mrs. Lizzie Marvin, of No. 17 Eighty-first street yesterday, while Mrs. Marvin had a year-old bally in her arms. It is supposed that Mrs. Del Monte is being hidden by one of the Italian market gardeners whose huts dot the Dyker Meadows.

The shooting grew out of jealousy. Mrs. Del Monte had been carrying b revolver and making threats against Mrs. Marvin ever since last summer.

stevedore in Brooklyn, who owns a great deal of unimproved property in and about Bath Beach. The Del Montes went to board with the Marvins at Maid 3. Bighty-first street and New Utrecht avenue last summer.

GREW JEALOUS OF MRS. MARVIN.

Del Monte paid more attention to Mrs. Marvin than Mrs. Del Monte sion, 3. thought was necessary. She is a beautiful Italian woman, about thirty years of age, and of ungovernable temper. Without giving voice to her sealous suspicions she went to Brooklyn and bought a revolver.

A couple of days later she drew the revolver on Mrs. Marvin while they were alone in the house with the Marvin children, an infant and a tittle girl eight years old. She said that she had every notion to shoot and kill, but would restrain herself if Mrs. Marvin would send Del Monte

When Mr. Marvin got home that night his wife told him of the conduc of the Del Monte woman, and he sent word to Del Monte that he would have to vacate. There was a stormy scene between the Del Montes, at the conclusion of which the man packed his clothes and went to Brooklyn, leaving her behind. She went to live with friends in the market garden

Recently Del Monte began some improvements on property he owned close to the home of the Marvins. He got into the habit of dropping in at the Marvin home for luncheon when he happened to be in Bath Beach during the day looking after his workmen, and it did not take long for news of this to reach Mrs. Del Monte.

THREATENED TO DO SOME KILLING.

She went to the Marvin house with her revolver, and served notice that ing. This was last Saturday afternoon. Marvin was informed of the visit, and sent word to Del Monte that he would have to stay away from the house, as he feared that Mrs. Del Monte was bent on murder.

Del Monte went down to see the Marvins yesterday at noon to talk it over. When told of the threats made by his wife he promised to keep away on his future visits to Bath Beach and went back to Brooklyn. It appears that Mrs. dei Monte was watching the house and knew of the visit. She knew that it was Mrs. Marvin's custom to take her two children every Sunday afternoon for a visit to the home of Mrs. Margaret Stone, at lengths from Onnet, who was Eighty-sixth street and Bay avenue. Mrs. Stone is an invalid and was the lengths for the place. only member of the family at home. Mrs. Del Monte made her way to Mrs. Stone's residence, walked upstairs and hid herself in a closet while Mrs. Stone was at dinner downstairs.

Mrs. Stone was paralyzed with fear, and before she could call for help the Del Monte woman was well out on the meadows. Capt. Frederick W. Kirkman, Husband No. 1 Is Alleged to Have Proposed to Edward Roche, Husband No. 2, that Deadly Sweets Be Sent to Wife.

HER FATHER NOW DEMANDS THAT HE BE ARRESTED

Grand Jury Indicts the Girl on Bigamy Charge and Kirkman Himself Admits that He Proposed to "Make a Molineux Case of It."

The Queens County Grand Jury found an indictment for biganest this afternoon against Margaret Familton, the twenty-year-old girl of Whitestone, L. I., who married two young men in as many days a week ago. A bench warrant was issued for the girl, and she will be arrested at her home. Her father, however, is prepared to furnish bail immediately upon her arrest.

There was revealed in the testimony heard by the Grand Jury the afternoon a remarkable story of an alleged suggestion by Frederick W. Kirkman to Edward Roche, husbands Nos. 1 and 2 of the much-married young woman, that they prepare a box of poisoned candy for their bride and make "another Molineux case of it." Kirkman is eighteen years old and Roche, who is a medical student, is twenty.

Young Roche told the Grand Jury that as soon as it b the young girl had committed bigamy Kirkman came to Willets Point, where moche is a member of the Hospital Corps, and rested that they send the young woman a box of poisoned candy.

"He said to me," said young Roche to-day, "let's make another Molin case outof it. I will buy a box of candy. As a member of the hosp first, dragging his wife by the hand you can get at all the poisons you want. Get some good, powerful po after him. The others followed. The and inject it into the candy with a hypodermic syrings. I will see that The and inject it into the candy with a hypodermic syringe. I will see that the gets the candy." Roche said that when he told Kirkman that he was a

TRIED TO KILL HERSELF.

Young Roche also told the Grand Jurors a story of the much married young girl's attempt to end her life by throwing herself into the Sound on Thursday night. Roche was talking to her parents in the Whitestone home have no complaint to make, but many thanks to offer. You have a beautiful of the Familtons when he heard the girl leave the porch. He went-out city, but the devil has a strong footcalled to her, but she did not answer.

Going down to the roadway he saw her running down the ro mel's pier. Roche gained on her, but she had a good lead. She randout on the pier, hurriedly took off her jacket and threw it down. Then she pulled from the folds of her dress a letter and placed it carefully on her cloak. She ran out to the end of the pier. Just as she was about to leap into the water Roche caught her by the shoulder. The letter she had left on the pier was addressed to Roche and read:

Dear Mr. Roche: I write these few lines to let you know I died few you. I know I have married Fred Kirkman, but at the point of a revolver, and I loved you too much. I thought the best thing for me to do was to die. Tell all the girls to come to my funeral, and also you. Will close, hoping that you will remember me as ever, your true triend. The poisoned candy story was frankly admitted by young Kirkman in conversation with an Evening World reporter. He said calmly that he had talked over with Edward Roche, the second husband, the plan of se ing their bride a box of poisoned candy. "One of us was to buy the poison and the other the candy." said young Kirkman, "and after we had mixed them together we were going to send it to Margaret. I thought that was the best way to get her out of When Mr. Familton heard the story of the poisoned candy he asserted hat he would bring the matter to the attention of the District-Attorney the first opportunity, and to-day as soon as he obtained an audience with the Kings County prosecutor he applied for the arrest of Kirkman. ference at the Madison Avenue Baptist GRAND JURY WITNESSES.

Among the witnesses who were summoned before the Grand Jury Ru day to testify about the two marriages of the young girl on two success days were the ministers who performed the ceremonies, the parents of this girl, young Kirkman, the first husband, and his parents, and Roche, the second husband, who is a member of the hospital corps at Willets Point.

Roche is still loyal to the girl who, he asserts, was completely hypnotized by Kirkman, and therefore was not a responsible party to her marriage with him. The young girl's defense rests entirely upon her story that Kirkman exerted an influence over her that she could not resist. It was just like the influence Evengali must have exerted over Trilby, this strange

It is rarely that a story of hypnotism is injected into a defense charge of bigamy, and as yet the law has no precedent upon which to termine the force of such an argument.

The girl declares that she loved young Roche as Trilby loved Billee. As long as Kirkman was not around exerting his hypnotic influe she had no thought of any one but her lover, but immediately Kirkman near her she felt her mind completely subdued to his will, she

The Rev. Dr. Thorpe, who married the young girl to Kirkman, was to-day, before he was called into the Grand Jury room, if, when he determined the ceremony, he thought the girl acted as if hypnotized.

DIDN'T APPEAR DAZED. Dr. Thorpe replied: "Do you think I would perform a marriag under any such circumstances? The girl did not appear in the least d She acted as if she had full possession of all her faculties and realized the importance of what she was doing."

Mr. Familton, the girl's father, when asked about the po story as he was entering the Grand Jury room to-day, said:
